

Building an Impact Economy

SIS's Strategy to 2030

At SIS, our mission is to empower businesses, of all kinds, to make a real, measurable and sustainable impact upon people's lives.

That's why our strategy to 2030 is centred around our vision for an Impact Economy.

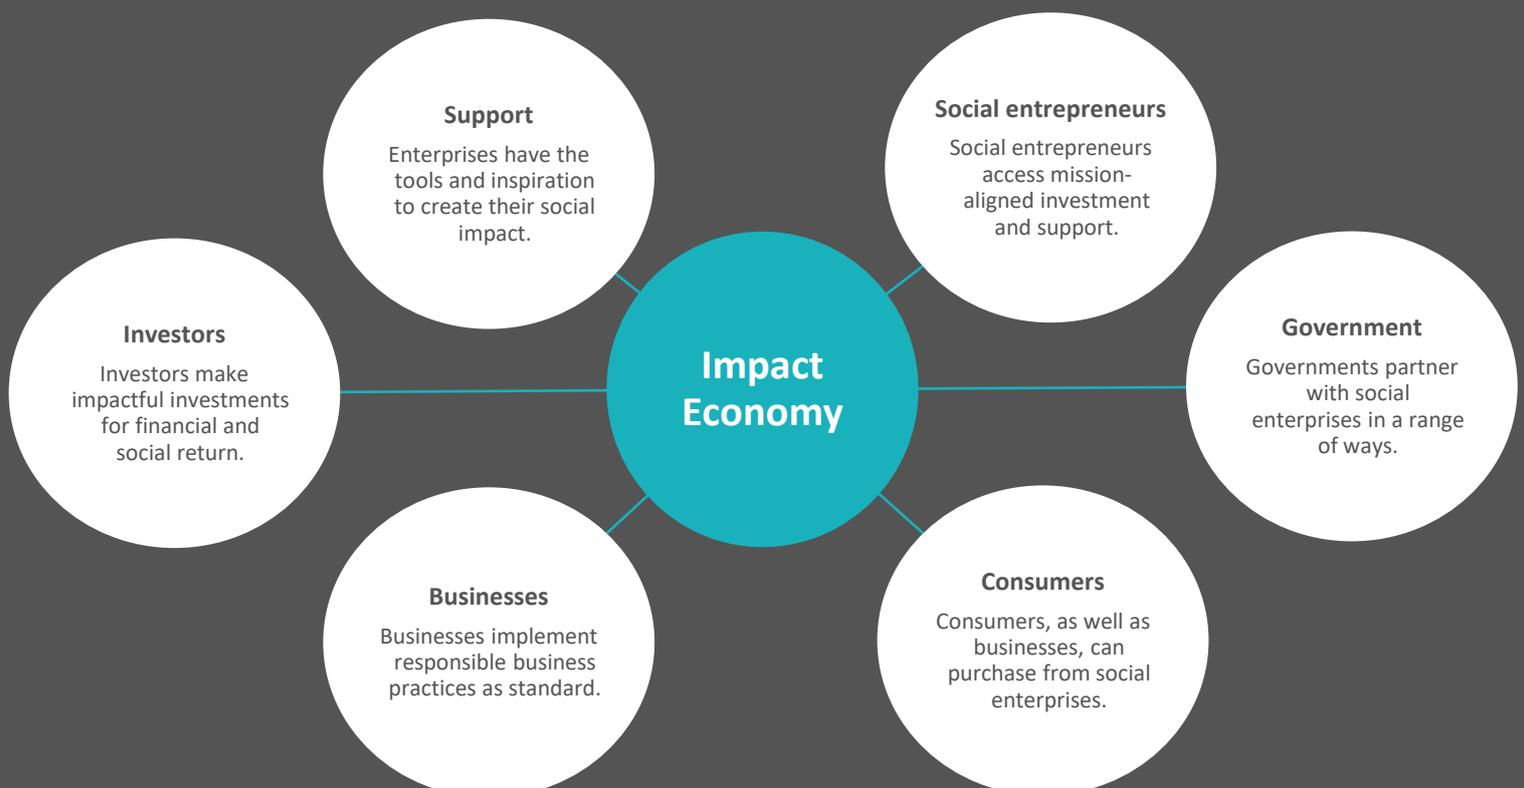

In light of COVID-19, we believe this vision is more important than ever, and that a drive towards this common goal can transform our society and economy to be stronger, equitable and impactful.

Since 2001, we've been working alongside some of the world's most impactful enterprises; supporting, funding and encouraging social enterprise across the country.

So far, we've invested £80 million and counting in more than 400 impactful enterprises and supported over 5,000 social entrepreneurs to sustainably grow their social impact.

And we're only just getting started.

So, what is an Impact Economy?

What's Next?

First and foremost, we will support Scotland's third and social enterprise sector through the current crisis by working collaboratively to offer needs-driven funds and support. In the longer term, by 2030, we will;

Provide 10,000 enterprises with the tools, support, inspiration and connections to create greater social impact.

Connect 500 social entrepreneurs, enterprises and third sector organisations with mission-aligned investment and support.

Our Approach

To remain focused and deliver to our mission, our strategy rests on four guiding segments.

Communities	Market Building	Access to Finance	Innovation
Funding and growing social and mission driven enterprises.	Connecting enterprises with the expertise and opportunities they need to grow.	Bolstering the growing sector of responsible lenders across the UK.	Catalysing support, funds and activities in response to social/environmental challenges.
